By FRED H. RUSSELL Max Liebman will present his Christmas Spectacular, "Babes in Toyland," on NBC-TV tonight from 9 to 10:30 e'cleck. Starring Donnie Day, Jack E. Leonard, Dave Garroway, Bil and Core Baird and fee-series of live compatible color pro-ductions to be done in the NBC

Brooklyn studies. Other stellar performers to appear in the television adaptation of the Victor Herbert operetta will include Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander, dancers: Jo Sullivan, musical comedy star, and the Calrolia, European comedy act.

One of Victor Herbert's greatest successes, "Babes in Toyland," was first presented at the Majestic theater in New York city on Oct. 13, 1903. It has remained one of America's favorite operettas chiefly because of the lovely melodies, "Toyland," "March of the Toys," "Don't Cry Bo-Peep" and "I Can't Do the Sum."
"March of the Toys" is a particularly Yuletide favorite selection and has been recorded extensively over the years since 1903.

CANTELLI CONDUCTS

Guido Cantelli will conduct the Boston Symphony orchestra and guest soloists in a complete performance of Verdi's great "Manzoni Requiem" tonight over WRCA radio from 8 to 9:30, o'clock The program will start a half-hour earlier than usual and will run an hour and a haif. Soloists will be Herva Nelli. soprano; Claramae Turner, mezzosoprano; Eugene Conley, tenor; and Nicola Moscons, bass. The New England Conservatory choir, directed by Lorna Cooke de Varon, will sing the choral parts.

This will be the first broadcast of the Verdi work by this orchestra. A non-broadcast subscription performance yesterday in Boston, marked the first time this orchestra had ever performed the piece.

Cantelli has been guest conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra previously with the boston Symphony orchestra previously with the boston of the film world. chestra previously with great succes. He will also conduct its Saturday, Dec. 25, broadcast concert. Cantelli was first invited to the U.S by Arturo Toscanini as guest conluctor of the former NBC Symphony, and returned for six consecutive years, a record no other conductor has achieved. The Verdi "Requiem" was written in memory of Alexander Mazzoni, the Italian writer and is in seven major sections.
