REESE, Mich., Jan. 31-(AP) Elaine Solgat received President Elsenhower's apology today for the length of his Jan. 7 State of the Union message to Congress. Elaine, 16-year-old junior at Reese High school, had to copy the 7.700-word speech in longhand as punishment for talking while her history class was listening to the president's talk. It took her nearly a week to complete the task. Then she sent it to the President. "I thought he might have covered the same ground with fewer words," she said.

Elaine got the copy back today. Written across the top of the first page was this message: "To: Elaine Solgat-with profound apologies for the length of this speech to one who was given the task of copying it. With best wishes from Dwight D. Eis-
