EMERGENCY IN GENOA

GENOA, Italy, March 10—(AP) Genoa declared a state of emergency in a densely populated section of this port city tonight because of explosive mines planted more than 30 years ago in wartime. Demolition crews, working six hours daily, will try to remove or detonate all the remaining mines. No person will be permitted to enter a mile-square section of the city during the operations.

ABOUT NAILS

A man who has been in the building business since he was about nine years old told us the other day that the trouble with most amateur carpenters is that they use too many nails. Seems that because they aren't too sure of themselves they try to make things solid by driving in nail after nail. Pretty soon there are so many nails in the wood that it splits and doesn't hold worth a nickel.

He told us, for example, that when you want to nail a 2 in. by 4 in. stud to a plate, two eight-penny nails toe-nailed through on each wide face of the stud will do the trick. We'd like to add, by the way, that when a nail is toenailed, that is driven in at an angle, it has more holding power than when it's driven straight. A lot of work around the house involves nailing 1 in. stock to 2 in. by 4 in. or 2 in. by 6 in. stock and here again you can get along very well if you use two eight-penny nails at each spot where the 1 in. stock joints the larger stock. This will hold if the boards are 6 inches wide or less. If they are over this, use three eight-penny nails as an extra nail here will prevent the board warping. This little rule will hold true for sheathing roof sheathing, subflooring and similar jobs.

When it's necessary to nail straight through 2 in. stock into something equally heavy, change from eight to ten-penny. If the stock is 4 in. wide use two nails, if 6 in. wide you can use three nails. For jobs like nailing plywood, nails should be spaced about every 6 in. along the edges and about 12 in. along other points of contact. Size of nail here depends on thickness of plywood.

Remember, by the way, that a bright new nail has greater holding power than one that is dirty or rusty.
