UNION REJECTS PACT AT GENERAL DYNAMICS

GROTON, July 27 — (AP) Membership of the AFL Metal Trades council today rejected a new contract agreement reached last week between the union's negotiating committee and the General Dynamics Corp.

The vote, 1,759 to 192, followed rejection of the agreement on Monday by the heads of the union's 11 divisions.

About 4,000 workers in 11 crafts at General Dynamics' Electric Boat division shipyards are represented by the union. Electric Boat is the builder of the atomic submarines Nautilus and Seawolf. Work on a third nuclear submarine began last week.

The union's negotiating committee said the new contract called for a 16-cent package that included a 6 1-2 cents an hour pay boost and a pension plan.

A union spokesman said the division heads felt the 16-cent package was inadequate and still below the wage rates of other shipyards.

Inkeage

The old contract, which expired June 30, was continued in force until Aug. 10.

Union officials said they would meet with federal and state mediators to set a date for the reopening of contract negotiations with the company.

Company spokesmen were not available for comment on today's vote by the union.

Present wage scales could not be obtained because of the many job breakdowns and various types of skills.

A final check showed a new record coffee crop in Costa Rica, San Jose reports.
