GRIPES PILE UP ON POSTAL PAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Complaints piled up today at headquarters of a postal union that many mail men aren't being paid overtime for working the Christmas weekend.

But, said John F. Bowen, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, there's probably nothing that can be done about it.

The Federation, he said, has filed formal complaints with the Post Office department on behalf of many groups of mail men throughout the country.

However, he explained, the law gives the Post Office department an option of paying overtime or providing time off for holiday work.

In many instances, Bowen said, mail men were "given to understand" they would receive cash payments for the extra time worked on the Christmas weekend.

Since the holiday, however, he continued, many supervisors have told mail men they should take time off to make up for the holiday rush.

There was no immediate comment from the Post Office department on the complaint from Bowen.

On Dec. 18, however, department officials said regular postal employees working on the Monday before Christmas would be compensated through time off. They said temporary employees were not covered by the order from President Eisenhower declaring the day before Christmas a holiday.

Bowen said the Post Office department has promised to investigate all of the complaints. But, he said, by the time the investigations are made most of the men probably will have taken the time off rather than wait for possible payment some time in the future.

Only one complete solution of the congressional approval of a change in postal laws to remove the option now given the postal service to decide whether to pay in cash or give time off for extra hours.
