

Career Of "Blond Tigress" To Be Told On Gang Busters

Details Of The Case Of Eleanor Jarman Will Be Heard At 8 P. M. Over WABC In
First Of Series Of Two

The amazing career of Eleanor Jarman, known to Chicago police as "The Blonde Tigress" because of the shootings and beatings she administered to her hold-up victims, will be dramatized in two installments on Gang Busters, beginning Saturday at 8 p. m. over WABC.

Details of the case will be described to Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, former head of the New Jersey State Police, by a police official. The story will be concluded the following Saturday, Nov. 25.

After a childhood marked by spasms of sadistic cruelty, the attractive, blonde-haired girl joined two men in executing a series of daring hold-ups. Altho slight in stature, the "tigress" slugged and blackjacked her men and women victims, and deliberately beat a storekeeper to death.

Eleanor Jarman's ability to terrorize her accomplices was a factor that long hindered police. Their exhaustive attempts to capture her will provide a thrilling climax to the first episode.

The Old Ranger will tell a story based on the Joshua tree, a giant Yucca named by Brigham Young the "Tree of Promise," during Death Valley Days, Saturday, at 9:30 p. m., over WEAJ. The action centers around a company heading for the promised land of California in covered-wagon days. During an attack by Indians the leader of the band is seriously wounded and in his dying moments counsels his followers to follow the direction in which the branches of the grotesque tree seem to point.

The first hot gagbuster ever to be heard with Milton Berle on Stop Me If You've Heard This One, will appear Saturday, when Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou, the little girl who isn't there are heard at 8:30 p. m. over WEAJ with Berle, Jay C. Flippen and Harry Hershfield.

Al Roth's orchestra will be heard as guest band on the same show.

Arturo Toscanini will conduct the NBC symphony orchestra in the fourth concert of its six-week Beethoven Festival on Saturday, over WJZ from 10 to 11:30 p. m.

Toscanini will open his program with the "Leonore" Overture, No. 1, and will also conduct Symphonies 8 and 7. Samuel Chotzinoff, NBC's director of serious music, and music critic of the New York

"Ghost Town," first all-American ballet to be included in the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo repertoire, will be a special musical offering of WEAJ Saturday from 10:30 to 11 p. m. John Martin, dance critic of the New York Times, will join the broadcast as commentator.

With both libretto and music by Richard Rodgers, best known for the many popular hits he has written for stage and screen, "Ghost Town," tells the story of a mining town in the Sierras in the 1860's, from drabness to roaring boom days, then back to drabness again as the mines are worked out. It was received with acclaim at its Metropolitan Opera house premiere last Sunday.

Vivyan Donner, fashion expert for 20th Century-Fox News, will be the name contestant on the Cal Tinsley "Youth vs Age" program Saturday over WJZ at 8:30 p. m.
