

Benny Gang Plans To Give "Pinocchio" Sunday Evening

Robert Taylor And Barbara Stanwyck Will Co-Star In Delightful Comedy-Drama For Screen Guild Theatre

Jack "Woodenhead" Benny, claiming there are no strings on him, will forget his dramatic ambitions long enough to portray the title role in his version of Walt Disney's latest cartoon classic, "Pinocchio," during the broadcast over WEAF Sunday at 7:00 p. m.

Mary Livingstone is his choice to play the still small voice of Pinocchio's conscience, Jiminy Cricket. And as a crowning achievement of type casting, Jack has selected Phil Harris for the villainous role of J. Worthington (Honest John) Foulfellow, while Giddy Dennis Day will play the sly fox's giddy companion, Gideon, the cat. Altho other roles have not been parcelled out as yet, that corpulent Don Wilson will have no competition for the part of Monstro, the whale.

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, one of Hollywood's happiest married couples, will prove they're "Allergic To Love," when they appear in that original vehicle on the Screen Guild Theatre, Sunday, over WABC at 7:30 p. m., directed by Roger Pryor, host.

The gay comedy takes place on a ship en route to Rio. Taylor and Miss Stanwyck, as the principals, have just been married and are one their honeymoon. The first time Taylor kisses his new bride, she begins to sneeze. In fact every time they get together she sneezes, and their "best" friend, who is a doctor, discovers that the bride is allergic to her groom. After passing their entire honeymoon apart, they discovered the real cause of the allergy.

Dr. Allan Roy Daffoe, of Dionne quintuplet fame, and Vera Vague, lecture on most anything, will appear with Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Sunday, at 8:00 p. m., over WEAF. Donald Dickson, baritone, and Robert Armbruster's orchestra, will offer a group of popular tunes.

"It's Delightful to Be Married," the song that pushed Anna Held's
