

London Sightseeing Tour Arranged For Radio Audience

Play Will Reveal What A Cabby Thinks About;
Woods And Damon Are Cast In Knickerbocker Playhouse Series

Radio listeners will be taken on a sightseeing tour of London, 1940 version, Saturday from 5:30 to 6 p. m. in a broadcast from the British capital to be heard here over WJZ.

A microphone will record the journey thru air-raid shelters and other points of current interest as the world's greatest city digs in to withstand daily bombing attacks. The broadcast is designed to provide the American radio audience with an intimate glimpse of how Londoners are meeting the crisis.

Ever wonder what a cabby thinks about?

You'll find out in "Height of Fashion," a gay but penetrating first play by Irving Gaynor Nieman which is to be presented by the Radio Guild over WJZ Saturday at 8:35 p. m., under the direction of Thomas L. Riley.

Lesley Woods as Mary Ellen Jones and Lester Damon as Mike Hardy in "The Stars Are So Distant" is the billing for the opening show of the new Knickerbocker Playhouse series, Saturday at 7 p. m., over WEAJ.

When Cliff Goldsmith, author of NBC's "Aldrich Family," was a boy he got his first taste for the theatre by giving plays in the home of a pal, Al Graham. Cliff acted as author as well as producer and called in the neighborhood kids to serve as the actors. The stage curtains, a pair of discarded bed sheets, were hung across the arch doorway between two bedrooms. Not long ago, Cliff received a letter from Al's mother, reporting that the curtain pulleys are still on the walls after 30 years.
