

Daylight Time to End Sunday; Most Programs to Change Schedules

Evelyn, pictured here, featured violinist on Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" Sunday night program over the NBC-Red network, evidently values her violin more than she does her life. She carries more insurance on the instrument than she does on herself.

Other Stations Tonight

Chicago and New York will go off summer "daylight saving" time Sunday, with a consequent shift in radio schedules. Since most programs originate in those two cities, changes in time there mean changes in schedule for the rest of the country.

Beginning Sunday, almost every network program—and many a local program—will move, most of them reaching Madison an hour later than during the summer.

To keep in touch with your favorite programs, follow State Journal listings.
