

Lowell Thomas Will Relate His Personal Adventures

Noted Commentator To Guestar On "We, The People;" McGee And Molly To Stage Football Game

News Commentator Lowell Thomas will tell of his adventures with the late Lawrence of Arabia and other colorful personages with whom he has been associated when the author appears with Gabriel Heatter on "We, the People," Tuesday at 9:00 p. m.

Among other guests will be Mrs. Jane Crosby, who has a dog haven in New Jersey; Vernon Delhart, who wrote "The Prisoner's Song;" W. K. Moore and Sam Smith, co-mayors of Sandy Springs, South Carolina and the Rasa Brothers, who are musicians by night and fish peddlers by day.

Fibber McGee and Molly and the citizens of Wistful Vista will attend the Notre Dame-Army football game on the Fibber McGee and Molly program Tuesday, 9:30 p. m. over WEAJ with the usual complications, from "Old-timer," "Teeny," "Mrs. Uppington" and "Gildersleeve." Billy Mills orchestra and the King's Men, vocal quartet, will be featured.

John Mason Brown, authority on the American theatre, will become a first-nighter on the "Information Please" board of experts for the WJZ broadcast, Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. Sitting with him on the receiving end of Clifton Fadiman's questions will be the regulars, John Kieran and Franklin P. Adams, and that crude semi-regular, Oscar Levant.

That joyous, albeit zany, troupe under the aegis of Bob Hope will invade the Western Women's club on Tuesday at 10:00 p. m. for their weekly highjinks over WEAJ.

Two separate cases, each involving suicide and death, will be dramatized on the Court of Missing Heirs program Tuesday, Oct. 29, 8:00 p. m., WABC, when the estates of Edwin Wright and Joseph Sardo are up for claim.

Wright, a spectacular figure in New York night life during the prohibition era, learned of a gambling syndicate and it was this knowledge that led to his death. Whether it was suicide or murder was never determined but his heirs are two brothers, one a doctor and one a dentist and his estate, unclaimed is valued at $7,200.00.

Sardo was an artist. Faced with loss of business and prestige, he took his life. His heirs are relatives and the estate is valued at $4,600.00. The thrice postponed case of August Donat's estate will also be heard.
