

The Post Radio Time Table

9:15 a. m., WJSV—The St. Lawrence River waterway having been in the news during the past week, the American School of the Air goes back over the explorations of Cartier and Champlain through which they sought to found an inland empire. Dr. Ray Chapman Andrews comments on this one.

2 p. m., WMAL—How's your Christmas shopping coming along? Ann Roberts, buyer for a leading New York department store, talks on "Gifts for Less Than One Dollar" as a feature of Alma Kitchell's Streamlined Journal.

3:15, WJSV—Lily Hertz, mezzo-soprano, and Leslie Hodge, conductor-pianist, offer a little music during Elinor Lee's customarily talkative quarter-hour. Brahms and Richard Strauss are the composers.

7:30, WRC—Alexander Woolcott, deserting his role of Town Crier, has written a novel dramatization for which Deems Taylor has composed the music. Woolcott calls his medium an "historical portrait" and this one's of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

8, WMAL—Gerard Darrow, 8-year-old authority on flora and fauna, returns to the Quiz Kids lineup, bringing a cheery voice and a happy personality remembered by us regulars from his previous appearances. Father Flanagan, founder of Boys Town, is tonight's observer. Now "Judge" Joe Kelly, learn how to ask those questions and keep the kids in check.

9, WJSV—One of the minor evils of our way of life is the effect Maj. Bowes' amateur hour is having. Fred Allen unfortunately is falling into the Major's ways and tonight offers one of the Bowes graduates, aged 11, singing the "Bell Song" from "Lakme." After all, Fred, embarrassed laughter isn't what made you a top comedian.

9, WRC—Eddie Cantor, too, is making his assault upon the muse of song. But this time it's supposed to be funny. Graham MacNamee, Clem McCarthy and Ben Grauer are the vocal debbies.

9, WMAL—Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt is interviewed by Commentator Earl Godwin: "National Welfare in Defense."

9:35, WMAL—And here, mes amis, is another quiz program. No descriptions from your mentor today, just the title: Spin and Win With Jimmy Flynn.

10:15, WJSV—"America's War Hawks" titles a talk by West Virginia's Senator Rush D. Holt.
