

Sherman Will Take Over On Fibber McGee Summer Spot

East-West War Listed For "Battle Of The Sexes;"
Paul Stewart Is Listed For Guest
Appearance

Ransom Sherman, fast moving conductor of "Club Matinee" and other popular NBC-Chicago programs, will become a brand new radio personality under the name of "Hap Hazard" when he takes over the "Fibber McGee and Molly" spot for the summer with the WEAJ network broadcast of Tuesday at 8:30 p. m.

It was after Jim and Marian Jordan changed their names to Fibber and Molly McGee that they began their ascent to stardom of the first magnitude, and now Ransom is stepping into big time network broadcasting in a night coast to coast spot.

Hap Hazard will be heard in the new show as manager of Crestfallen Manor, a quite Mythical hotel wherein he will have full rein for the foolishness that has built up his reputation.

but now the twain shall meet—in a gala East-West wit-war on "Battle of the Sexes," Tuesday at 8 p. m., over WEAJ.

Actress Jean Muir, who hails from New York City (and three other girls, names yet to be announced), will represent the East. Jean, recently turned theatrical manager, is now guiding the destinies of the County theatre at Suffern, N. Y.

Representing the West will be YMCA men from Washington and Oregon, who are now on a 10,000-mile good-will trip thru the United States and Canada.

Paul Stewart, the reporter in the Broadway hit, "Native Son," who has played a variety of villains on numerous "Grand Central Station" programs, will be granted his request to portray the hero when he makes another guest appearance in the series over WJZ Tuesday, at 8:00 p. m.
