

Henry Aldrich Really Things For Mother's

Engagement Of Soprano To Sing At Almost Proves Undoing Of Nation's Problem Child

Henry Aldrich almost sells his birthright when he engages a local soprano to sing at his mother's funeral. He is now out inquiring first, in "The Aldrich Family" Thursday at 8:30 p. m.

Having kept mum about the type of program to present when he starts a new series over the radio today, at 10:30 p. m., Frank Fey, the comedian, has now made public what it's all about. "There'll be surprises" is what he had to say. However, it is a surprise in the fact that Fey will have for his supporting cast Bob Hannon and his songs, the Continentals quartet and Harry Salter's orchestra.

After a week in the city library, a nose in an encyclopaedia, and with a snort for skeptics, "Honest" Frank Morgan maintains that he has unearthed a new and different "art" in which he can claim world supremacy to completely stump emcee John Conte and the cast of the Coffee Time program on Thursday, over WEAJ at 8 p. m.

It looks like "unfinished business" in the Music Hall with the Maudie's sudden induction into the mysteries of domestic life is brought about when some nasty little germs bring both her parents down with colds — in the latest chapter of "Maudie's Diary," scheduled for Thursday, over WABC, at 7:30 p. m.
