Much Action Featured In Lyric Film

Those strange noises, you might have heard yesterday, that dancing in the streets you may have seen was NOT caused by rumor of impending peace in Europe, but by the legion of Rangebuster addicts who were whooping it up over the arrival of "Tonto Basin Outlaws" at the Lyric theatre, where "Crash" Corrigan, "Dusty" King and "Alibi" Terhune are having themselves a time in their latest wild and wooly opus.

And those citizens who look to the latest Rangebuster picture as a matter of world interest have something to really cheer about; "Tonto Basin Outlaws" is the tenth of this current series and has crammed into its reels more dynamite per square inch than any western or action picture this corner has viewed in some time.

Call it secret formula, call it sheer genius if you like, or just blame it on ordinary good luck, but the fact remains that in Producer George Weeks and Corrigan, King and Terhune, Monogram certainly has the answer to an exhibitor's prayer. These rootin' tootin' boys are sure fire fun and their pictures have set a standard for bang-bang entertainment unheard
