

Outstanding Stars Will Be Heard On Patriotic Program

"This Is War" At 7 P. M. Saturday To Feature Fredric March, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Kurt Weill And Norman Corwin

Fredric March, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Kurt Weill, Norman Corwin and the men of the United States Navy combine Saturday at 7 p. m. over all networks to present the third broadcast of the series, "This Is War."

"Your Navy" is the title of the program, written by Anderson, and starring March and Fairbanks. Weill has composed the musical score and Corwin will direct, with the program a dramatization of the great world-wide tasks and assignments confronting our fighting men and ships, and the glorious tradition which is no small aid to this branch of the armed forces.

Changing title to accord with the rising tide of U. S. sentiment, "Air Youth for Defense" is to become "Air Youth for Victory" Saturday at 4:30 p. m. over WEAF.

The drama and comment series is presented jointly by NBC and the National Aeronautic Association's Air Youth Division.

As a nation at war prepares to enact measures to insure health standards in industrial boom towns, "Doctors at Work," the American Medical Association series, will dramatize the necessity of immunization and inoculation of factory workers and school children in its episode Saturday, at 5:00 p. m. over WEAF.
