

James A. Farley Will Enact Politician Role On Program

New York State Democratic Boss To Be Featured In "The Good Party Man" Scheduled Via
WJZ At 9:30 P. M. Friday

James A. Farley, former postmaster general, who believes it is not such a big jump from politics to play acting, will make his debut as a radio actor when he is starred in the second performance of the new "Celebrity Theatre," Friday at 9:30 p. m. over WJZ.

Farley, who is chairman of the New York State Democratic committee, will be the featured player in a political story by Margaret Culkin Banning, titled "The Good Party Man." It's all about a man who runs for congress.

Grantland Rice, veteran sports writer and poet, will have his first crack at Clifton Fadiman's fearsome questions when he sits beside Oscar Levant, John Kieran and his old newspaper sidekick, Franklin P. Adams, on the "Information Please" board of experts Friday, at 8:30 p. m. over WEA.

Take Whitey Ford, the Duke of Paducah, out to a ball game and he gets so steamed up his mental processes clog. The Duke will reveal more on the subject during his "Plantation Party" program, Friday at 9:30 p. m. over WEA.

The Westerners will offer "Take Me Back To Colorado", basso

Michael Stewart, will sing "That's Why Darkies Are Born", and Tom, Dick and Harry will present a novel specialty, "A Horse Ain't Got Much Sense."

Madeleine Carroll, lovely radio and cinema star will select members of the forces of the United Nations to appear with her on the 7 p. m. program in which the ebullient Colonel Lemuel E. Stoopnagle will find himself in stiff competition with a couple of husky lads in uniform.

Vaughn Monroe's record breaker seller, "The Street of Regrets" will be highlighted by Monroe on the Bob Hawk coniquiz, "How Am I Doing?" on Friday, 7:30 p. m. via WABC. The Monroe orchestra will play "String of Pearls" and "She'll Always Remember."