Author's Penchant For Nursery Rhymes To Be Revealed In "Gang Buster's"
Dramatization

"Suspicion" and "Assignment in Brittany" are two spots put young Authoress Helen MacInnes in the first expert spot on "Information Please" for Friday, 10 p. m., over WEA, Clifton Fadiman, presiding. MacInnes, Adams and Levant will thus be joined by the critics call the most likely author to take the writers left vacant by John Buchan's death, or the one called by James Hilton when he went to Hollywood.

MacInnes, Glasgow-born, Columbia University-educated, is both her best seller and the past two years. Her novels of adventure and with European background could only be written because she knows the locale and the people.

MacInnes, Oxford, Miss. Her husband traveled with her on their long vacations, to France, Belgium, Italy, Spain and the United States. The Highets came where Gilbert joined the faculty of Columbia university, from which he is now on leave for war work.

A cold-blooded murderer's strange penchant for nursery rhymes and an eight-year-old girl's singing of the quaint verses make up the central theme of the "Gang Busters" dramatization of the career of three Pennsylvania killers at 9 p. m., over WJZ. After breaking out of jail on a Christmas day, the three bandits went on to stage a $40,000 armored truck robbery, killing a policeman. The crime was witnessed by the girl, and it was thru her description of the men that they were brought to justice and convicted. "Gang Busters" programs have brought about the apprehension of several hundred wanted men since it went on the air.

Irene Dunne, celebrated screen star, will make one of her rare microphone appearances as guest narrator on the "Men, Machines—Victory" broadcast over the nationwide WJZ network at 10:30 p. m.

In the East to appear at a huge Victory Bond rally to be held in the Yale Bowl at New Haven that afternoon, the lovely actress will be operating on a close schedule. A police motorcycle escort will meet her at Grand Central terminal in New York and rush her to the Blue
