

"Blondie Tames A Lion" And It's A Roaring Broadcast

Dean Jagger, Native Of Columbus Grove, Featured
In Dramatization Of Experiences Of
U. S. S. "Marblehead"

The plot of "Blondie Tames a Lion," to be heard over WABC Monday, at 7:30 p. m., EWT, reads like a Who's Zoo. Blondie and Dagwood, vacationing at Camp Everything, have been pointed out as noted lion tamers by their son, Alexander. Up pops a lion and the loving couple have to make good on their reputation. It's hilarious, really, because once when Dagwood visited a menagerie he was told by an attendant not to be afraid of the lion. "He was raised on a bottle," said the attendant. "So was I," retorted Dagwood, "but I eat meat, now!" So, for some funny lines anent lions you don't have to go further than the "Blondie" program.

A vivid radio dramatization of the thrilling experiences of the navai lady who wouldn't give up, the U. S.
