FLAG SOCIETY HELPS

OAKLAND, Calif. — (U.P.) — For the past 35 years Ranger John G. Reynolds of the U. S. National Park organization has been trying to establish whether an American flag with 13 stars, seven white stripes and six red ones, which he dug out of the sands at Santa Cruz in 1907, is an official flag, and if so, when, where and how. His best bet has come from the American Flag society, which opines that it might have been used on an early frigate.
