

Katharine Hepburn Appears In "Philadelphia Story"

Katharine Hepburn will appear on "Arthur Hopkins Presents" Wednesday in her great comedy hit, "Philadelphia Story" by Philip Barry (WEAF, 11 30 p. m., EWT). When the Theatre Guild opened this play on Broadway in March, 1939, it was an instantaneous hit. Its success in motion pictures was no less emphatic.

A person selected at random from the studio audience will attempt to match the thought reading of Dunninger, the Mental Marvel, during his broadcast over Station WJZ on Wednesday at 9 p. m. Dunninger will direct a volunteer to think of a number and write it on a slate. Then, reading the thought of the writer, Dunninger will attempt to project the number by telepathy to a person in another part of the studio. If this demonstration works, the amateur thought reader then will call the Pamela North is kidnaped from a golf course right from under her husband's nose and she wakes up next to a corpse, before "The Norths Sink a Putt" on Wednesday at 8 p. m. over Station WEAF. Jerry North finally finds his spouse, and they both start on the trail of the unidentified body. Featured in the weekly chiller-diller are Alice Frost and Joseph Curtin in the title roles, with Frank Lovejoy as Lt. Weigand.

Glamour from Susan Hayward, laughs from Hugh Herbert and realism from a returned combat flier, will feature the Soldiers With Wings program presented by the Armed Forces Radio Production Unit over WJZ Wednesday, at 10 30 p. m., EWT. The weekly broadcast includes the music of Lt. Col. Eddie Dunstedter's All-Soldier Orchestra.
