

Amos 'n' Andy Borrow Uniform And Trouble

A masquerade ball is all that's needed to complicate matters for Amos 'n' Andy, on their broadcast of Friday, at 10 p. m., EWT, over WEAF. When the problem of what to wear to the event arises, the boys discover that a policeman who is a tenant of the Kingfish's has conveniently left town, and his uniform is available. The officer returns unexpectedly, however in the midst of the festivities, and goes looking for the culprits. What he finds is more than he bargained for—and what listeners will find is a half-hour of rib-tickling fun!

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI and a sports enthusiast of many years, will be guest on Bill Stern's "Sports Newsreel" from the Capital Friday (WEAF 10:30 p. m., EWT).

Hoover will tell how important a part athletics play in not only the physical structure of his organization, but in keeping morale at high.

Mother's Day and the attendant problem of finding a gift for mom which she doesn't already have grips The Parker Family in "Mother's Pet," amusing episode to be heard Friday, at 8:15 p. m., EWT, over WJZ. War-imposed scarcity of non-essentials hampers the search, too.

Merchant marines will be paid double tribute during the "Double or Nothing" program Friday, 9:30 p. m., EWT over WOR, when the entire quiz show personnel moves to Sheepshead Bay to give the merchant marine a chance as contestants on the show. The double purpose of the move is to salute the movie, "Tampico," newest film about the merchant marine service.

John Reed King emcees and Frank Forest sings, with Nat Brusiloff's orchestra.
