

Legal Experience Will Aid Guest On "Amos 'n' Andy"

The legal experience actor Raymond Massey acquired in his Abe Lincoln stage and film roles will come in handy when he plays the prosecuting attorney as guest star with radio's irrepressible Amos 'n' Andy on Friday at 9 p. m. over WEAF.

With his uncanny flair for trouble, Andy finds himself in court charged with a crime he didn't commit, in this, the second of two broadcasts the blackface comedians are making from New York.

Songs from several musical comedy successes, past and present, an operatic aria, and a concert selection make up the program for Dr. Frank Black's broadcast with Lucille Manners, soprano, and Ross Graham, baritone. Friday at 7 p. m., over Station WEAF. Orchestra and chorus open the program with "Oklahoma!" from the hit play of the same name.

Jimmy Durante, whose acquaintance with his friend and adviser, Umbriago, has provided him with inside information on all matters of international importance, continues his investigation of "the conditions that prevail." in his broadcast with Garry Moore, over Station WABC Friday at 9 p. m. Moore offers his cultural comic contributions, and presiding in the department of mellow melody are Georgia Gibbs and Roy Bargy.
