

Diamond Plays Large Role On 'Inner Sanctum' Tuesday

Appearing as murderous guest ghoul behind the creaking door, radio headliner Lawsen Zerbe tries an evil hand at diamond cutting in "Death Is a Double-Crosser," a bloodstained "Inner Sanctum" mystery, to be broadcast at 9 p. m. Tuesday over CBS.

Knowledge of the diamond cutter's art is a dangerous thing, as this ex-forgery learns when he commits murder to get his hands on the rare "King Midas" diamond.

A so-called scalp expert gets bawled out when the Kingfish, turning bald, gets balled up by taking the wrong treatment on the "Amos 'n' Andy" comedy show to be heard at 9 p. m. Tuesday over MBS. The story leads to an hilarious climax when the Kingfish tries to sue the expert for fraud.

Alexis Smith and Barry Sullivan of the films are paired in the "This Is My Best" romance, "That Man Is Here Again," at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday over CBS.

The love story concerns an ex-Army captain who writes "the play of the century," and his former WAC aids who, as play-doctor, handles its production and rescues it from a certain fate.

Everybody wants to get the act on the "Adventures of the Falcon" episode. "A Gem of Murder," to be heard at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday over MBS when a blackmailing racketeer is killed and at least two suspects claim the "dunit."

But Mike Waring, the Falcon, doesn't like to see innocent people playing musical chairs with the "hot seat," so he pursues the real murderer with his usual astuteness and nonchalance.
