

Music Hall Vocalist Guest For Templeton Show Sunday

Milena Miller, attractive vocalist on the Music Hall Thursday evenings, will be the guest of Alec Templeton on his program at 7 p. m. Sunday over NBC.

A former Conover model known as the "most beautiful girl in radio," Miss Miller will sing "I Don't Know Enough About You" and "Gypsy," with Templeton joining in with a parody on the latter tune. Pianist Templeton will open the musical half-hour with "Zampa Overture" by Herold to be followed by the rendition of Gershwin's "Concerto in F."

Screen headliner Brian Donlevy portrays the famous fiction detective, Rex McBride, in "Backfire," to be broadcast on the summer "Silver Theatre" at 5 p. m. Sunday over CBS. The comedy detective mystery is a radio adaptation by Carleton E. Morse from a story by Cleve F. Adams, creator of the McBride character.

A description of the latest scientific experiments which have led to the development of new drugs and surgical techniques designed to aid childbirth will be brought to listeners as the science-drama series, "Exploring the Unknown," presents a dramatization entitled "Painless Childbirth" at 8 p. m. Sunday over MBS.

While the jury is out, debating on a famous murder case, Barton Drake and Inspector Noah Danton establish the guilt of the real murderer, as they heed a "Distress Signal," and solve their latest case on "Mystery is My Hobby" at 9 p. m. Sunday over MBS. Barton Drake is played by Glenn Langan, and Norman Field is heard as Inspector Danton.
