

Lionel Barrymore Cast In 'Encore Theatre' Play

Lionel Barrymore will be heard as Dr. Bill Brown, when "Encore Theatre" presents "A Man to Remember," over CBS at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. The story, adapted from Kathryn Haviland-Taylor's novel, "Failure," deals with the sacrifices of a small-town doctor who set aside personal security for the welfare of the community.

MBS' pioneer public service program, the "American Forum of the Air," will discuss the currently topical question, "What is the Best Solution to the Palestine Problem," on the broadcast at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

A 600-carat diamond, worth a half-million dollars, disappears from a tiny room, just as a world famous diamond cutter poses his cleaver over the stone, and "Nick Carter, Master Detective," undertakes "The Case of the Diplomat Diamond" at 7 p. m. Tuesday over MBS.

Nick runs across the trail of a man who has disguised his face with parafin injections, a second corpse, and sundry other leads before the 600-carat solution sparkles thru the mist.

Mike (The Falcon) Waring invests $5,000 in a new Broadway play and loses it overnight when the leading lady is shot on stage in the premiere performance. Determined to recoup his losses, Mike goes behind the footlights to trap the killer and clear the name of an innocent man in "Murder is a Bad Play," latest of the "Adventures of the Falcon," heard at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday over MBS.
