Two more broadcasts have been scheduled for presentation from the Wisconsin Centennial exposition.

James Melton's "Harvest of Stars" will be aired there Wednesday, Aug. 4, with Elvita Clementi, Milwaukee soprano, a guestar. The program also will include a dramatization (with Milwaukee actors) of a little-known story about Solomon Juneau, Milwaukee's first citizen. The show will be broadcast by CBS-WBBM at 7:30 p. m., Madison time.

The major portion of the National Farm and Home hour will come from the exposition Saturday, Aug. 7. Speakers will be Gov. Rennebohm, Dean Ira L. Baldwin of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, Manager Ralph Ammon of the exposition, Margaret McGuire ("Alice in Dairyland"), and Marvin Schweers of the U. S. soil conservation service.

This program, with Everett

Mitchell as master of ceremonies, will be broadcast at 11 a. m. on NBC-WMAQ and at noon on NBC-WIBA.

Eve Arden's new "Our Miss Brooks" (CBS) may replace the Kay Kyser show in the fall.

Comedian Herb Shriner has been optioned to fill a six-week period on CBS between the Danny Thomas and Jack Carson shows.

Mutual's "Johnny Modero" will return to the air in the fall with Brian Donlevy in the title roll.

Look for Phil Baker to come back as a comedian rather than as a master of ceremonies.
