Four more attractions have been added to Madison's entertainment calendar. They are a concert by the Pro Arte quartet, a return engagement of Wayne King's orchestra, chorus, and soloists; a concert by the Hamline University A Cappella choir, and a program by the Inka trio, interpreters of Inca culture and South American folkways.

In chronological order: The Pro Arte Quartet's concert for the University of Wisconsin's "Symposium on Humanities in an American Society," scheduled at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Music hall, will be open to the public.

There will be no admission charge. The quartet will play Schubert's G-major quartet and Schoenberg's first quartet.

The Hamline choir will give a concert of sacred music at 8 p. m. Thursday in the sanctuary of the First Methodist church. Admission will be free, but an offering will be taken.

Robert Holliday will conduct the 50-voice organization in music of Bach, Krenek, Harris, Ives, Britten, Schumann, and other old and new composers. Shirley Klosterman will be soprano soloist.

The Inka trio will appear in a Latin-American Week program Mar. 29 in the Wisconsin Union theater. Star of the group is Imma Sumack, Peruvian soprano. The artists will appear in costume of authentic Inca design.

Wayne King will present his "A Little Bird," "The Man I Love" . . . Vaughn Monroe (WBBM); and Patti Page.

9 p. m.—Theater of the Air (WGN): Victor Herbert's "Eileen."
