Called 'Threat'

Railway Act's Future at Stake, Justice Says

ST. LOUIS-(U.P)-The head of the emergency fact-finding board appointed by Pres. Truman to investigate the seven-day Wabash railroad strike today warned that the walkout threatened the future of the Railway Labor act.

Utah supreme court Chief Justice Roger McDonough's warning came after striking operating brotherhoods failed to answer the board's request that they return to their jobs at once pending the decision of the board on the issues of the dispute.

It was given added force by the brotherhoods' refusal to continue negotiations on similar issues on the Missouri Pacific lines until settlement of the Wabash dispute. Brotherhood members of Missouri Pacific voted to authorize a strike last Dec. 15.

Representatives of the Wabash and the four unions were meeting in an effort to settle the strike after the board adjourned until

At the close of the board's initial session today, McDonough charged that the Wabash strike is a threat to "the integrity of the Railway Labor act."

He said that the board's sitting in judgment on the dispute while the men are out of service might have "broad and far reaching implications." And he expressed his fear that the public might bring pressure to bear to remove rail disputes from the act's jurisdiction and place them under the NLRB.

A letter in the Mail Bag last week complained about Madison residents' inability to get tickets for University of Wisconsin concerts. There are several answers to the complaint, but the best one is the city's failure to build its own auditorium. We have depended on the university for facilities so long that we have come to take them for granted; note the hullabaloo over the Horace Heidt inci-

Platteville, Richland Center, Lancaster, and many other smaller cities have had civic auditoriums for many years-some, if memory serves, since 1914.

SELLOUT: Something of a record has been set by the University of Wisconsin French department's production of "Le Malade Imag-inaire." It has had two sell-outs for one performance.

The play was scheduled for a small Milwaukee playhouse on Monday, Mar. 28, and every seat was sold within a few days. So it was moved to a larger house—the Milwaukee University school auditorium. And now all the additional tickets have been sold.

The Moliere comedy will be given also at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in the Wisconsin Union theater. At last reports, tickets were still available for that performance.

Meanwhile, two broadcasts in connection with the play have been booked. Scenes from the show will be presented at 5 p. m. Friday over WHA, and Dolores Mann, who has a leading role, will be interviewed by Nancy Grey on WTMJ at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

RADIO: Abbott and Costello may quit ABC when their current contract expires.

Margaret O'Brien is preparing a children's show.

Joan Crawford's recent return to radio as a guest after 10 year's absence has led to reports that she'd be interested in a dramatic

We've had lots of inquiries about "Information Please." As you know, it's now off the alt, but CBS may carry it, along with a filmed TV version.

Jack Barry will take "Juvenile Jury" to the West Coast for 10 days in mid-April.

Hildegarde will be Fred Aln's guest Sunday night on NBC. Sara Berner's "Ingrid Mataraza" character has gone over so well on the Jimmy Durante show that it will be a regular part.

SONG TOURNEY: Finals in the All- University Tournament of Song will be held May 21. It will be sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota, music sorority, and Phi Mu Alpha, music fraternity.

Finalists will be chosen in a group of pre-final competitions, each with its own trophy awards. Sororities and fraternities will compete first in their own preliminaries, then six choruses from each will sing again for the honor of representing them in the finals. The schedule:
