It looks like a Wisconsin weekend on the radio networks.

Dr. Harold Rusch of the University of Wisconsin will be among the scientists speaking in "The Story of Cancer Research" on Mutual at 8 tonight, and Melvyn Douglas, who formerly had his own stock company here, will be star of the same program.

Agnes Moorehead will be on Columbia at 8 tonight in "The Diary of Sophronia Winters," written by Lucille Fletcher, who wrote Miss Moorehead's great "Sorry, Wrong Number."

Fredric March will star in a full-hour version of "intermezzo" on Columbia at 7, and Jack Carson's father, a Milwaukee insurance man, will appear again on Jack's show on Columbia at 6.

Don Ameche will co-star with Jimmy Durante in their special version of "The Set Up" on NBC at 7:30 tonight. And Johnny Olsen, former WIBA announcer, will start a series called "Johnny Olsen's Got-Together" on ABC at 9 a. m. Saturday.

PRO ARTE: The Pro Arte quartet of the University of Wisconsin will resume its Madison series Sunday, May 8, after a tour of the state which will end May 3. The quartet will appear in Music hall at 8 p. m.

MUSIC AND DRAMA: An evening of music and drama will be presented under the auspices of the senior choir of the First Evangelical United Brethren church as its annual spring program, Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

A humorous skit, "Columbus Rediscovered America," will be presented by Delma Zurian, Charlene Schaefer, Mary Ellen Sylvester, John Schaefer, Jim Lauridsen, Westy Lausted, Dick Simonson, Ronald Hermsmeier, Elwood Koch, and Irvin Lloyd. El'Nathan Juedes will act as reader.

A one-act play, "A Cup of Sugar," will be presented by Jane Wheeler, Mrs. Gordon Sylvester, Barbara Trachte, and Mabel Bauer.

The program will also include selections by the choir and miscellaneous musical numbers by various choir members. Both plays are under the direction of Mrs. Harvey Koch, and Mrs. Stewart Gursko, choir director, is in charge of the music, assisted by Mrs. Emil Schaefer.

A lot of independent companies are fighting shy of How and Hughes because he's so "tough" to make releasing deals with. In the mg't-ter of "Love is Big Business," Frinistance, Claudette Colbert cut her salary to $75,000, and even if the picture is a big hit, the four partners who produced it and are releasing it through R.H.S. R.K.O., will have only about $50,000 to cut up among them. Mere peanuts for any piece of celluloid worth seeing.

Susan Hayward and Jesse Barker didn't come back to Hollywood after the big "Tulsa" premiere in the city of the same name. They're visiting relatives in Mississippi.

Has anyone noted that Clara Booth Luce has just become one of the heads of Sheed and Ward, a big N. Y. publishing house?

Macdonald Carey wants a three-month vacation when "Copper Canyon" (which he's doing with Ray Millan, Hedy Lamarr, and Mona Freeman) is finished. He's made six pictures in a row and rates a siesta.

Judy Garland and Vincente Minelli are not only dating, but phoning each other every few minutes at this point. All of which points to a possible reconciliation. And that would make their chums awfully happy.

Fabulous spender (and movie producer) Glenn McCarthy, just gifted Mrs. Pat O'Brien with a diamond and ruby cross in appreciation of Pat's work at the Shamrock opening.
