The Mt. Horeb high school band will be heard in the "Bandwagon" program over WHA at 7:30 a. m. Wednesday. The band recorded the 15-minute concert under the direction of Gary Vogt. The broadcast also will include a brief interview of Vogt by Don Voegeli, musical director of WHA.

ART: The Gimbel Wisconsin Centennial art collection will be displayed Wednesday through June 13 in Lindsay gymnasium at Wayland academy, Beaver Dam. The 32 oils include James Watrons' "Paul Bunyan and His Blue Ox Babe," Marshall Glasier's "Three Babes in the Wisconsin Woods," and Forrest Flower's "Indians Stealing Horses."

Three of the artists represented have been commissioned to paint pictures for a 1949 competition, "Wisconsin the Playground." They are Glasier, Madison; Edmund Lewandowski, Milwaukee, and Franklin Boggs, Beloit.

Aaron Bohrod, Madison, also has been commissioned to paint for this collection.

SOAP SCULPTURE: A total of $3,150 will be awarded in the 1949 competition for small sculptures in soap when the judges meet today in New York City.

SHOWER: Don McNeill's "Sunshine Shower," a daily feature of the "Breakfast Club" on ABC, will salute Lake View sanatorium Thursday. McNeil will ask his listeners to send greetings to Lake View patients.

RADIO GOSSIP: Jimmy Wakeley, heard often as a guest on NBC's "Grand Ole Opry" Saturday nights, has been signed for his first straight dramatic film role in "Boom Town Bad Men" in which he won't sing a single song. However, you can hear him singing when he pays another visit to the "Grand Ole Opry" show on June 11. Jimmy Durante, who is distinguished as a comedian on NBC Friday nights, now is carving another niche for himself as writer of the forewords for best-selling books. The Schnoz wrote the foreword for "It's the Law," a compilation of silly and absurd statutes throughout the nation and now has prepared the foreword for the new Herb Crooker book, "Mr. Bixby's Dream Boat."

There's one man in radio currently getting more mail addressed to him by the name he's known to radio fans than under his real name. He's Arthur Lake, the "Dagwood Bumstead of the "Blondie" programs on NBC Wednesday nights and it's a ratio of three to one on the Bumstead side in his mail.

With Vaughn Monroe's waxing of "Riders in the Sky" already past the million mark in sales, Stan Jones, who composed it, stands to clear about $30,000 this year from the song alone. That's not a bad "sideline," considering the fact that he's earning about $3,500 a year as a Forest Ranger at the Death Valley National monument.

"Young Love," starring Janet Waldo and Jimmy Lydon, will be the summer replacement for Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" on CBS starting July 4.

The Iron Curtain interfered with plans to broadcast an "America's Town Hall Meeting" from Warsaw, Poland. Similar efforts to air the broadcast from Russia and Yugoslavia have met with complete silence from those governments. Program is heard on ABC Tuesday nights.
