Items of those who by birth, residence, or education are more or less realistically classed as Wisconsin products:

First production task for Alex Gottlieb under his new RKO-Radio Pictures contract will be "Macao," starring Robert Mitchum.

Edith Gwynn reports that Agnes Moorehead, "estranged from her spouse, Jack Lee, has been tabling for two with red-haired actor Robert Gist." . . . Miss Moorehead will be in the cast of "Blackjack," to be filmed on Majorca with Julien Duvivier directing.

Edmund O'Brien (whose only Badger connection is his service at Truax Field) will star in "Dead on Arrival," story of insurance investigator who's poisoned and who has only a few hours to find his own murderer.

Fred MacMurray's entries won all the championship awards in dairy cattle at the recent Sonoma county fair in California.

Melvin Douglas has been cast opposite Ann Sheridan in "Carriage Entrance."

Spencer Tracy probably will star in a religious radio series this fall.

Charles Winninger will have a role in "A Mother for May," in which Gail Russell and William Holden will co-star for Columbia Pictures.

John Hiestand, native of Madison, is playing Prof. Mitch in "Young Love," heard on CBS. He and his family moved to Burlingame, Calif., when he was a child. His wife is the former Jean Wood, daughter of Sam Wood and sister of K. T. Stevens.

Raymond Paige will be guest director on CBS-WBBM's "Conductors' Showcase" at 7 tonight.
