Wisconsin Players

More than half the available season tickets for the Wisconsin Players' 1949-50 schedule had been sold by Wednesday afternoon. Prof. John E. Dietrich, associate director, announced. Dietrich said that in view of demand already demonstrated since the season books were placed on sale Monday, another sellout of season books can be anticipated. Six thousand, three hundred season subscriptions were available when season sale opened.

Players season subscriptions have had consistent sellouts since 1942. Price of the season book has remained the same since that time, despite increased costs of costumes, theater rental, make-up, properties, printing, and other production items.

CONCERT SERIES: Likewise, season tickets for the Wisconsin Union concert series were going rapidly, and the concert commit-
