State Farm Values Show 6% Decline

Wisconsin farm land values, have fallen for the first time since the beginning of the recent war, the federal-state crop reporting service announced Tuesday.

The service said land values have decreased 6 per cent since last March. This includes improvements put into the farms.

The drop marks the end of an 8-year string of increases that nearly doubled farm land values between 1941 and 1949.

The greatest increase came in 1946 and 1947.

Despite the drop, land values went down less than farm commodity prices and farm cash incomes. As a rule, the service said, land values tend to lag behind changes in farm product prices.
