Performing Chimps Like Winter Shoes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.) — Two of the St. Louis Zoo's performing chimpanzees will be able to keep in condition without getting cold feet this winter.

Zoo director George P. Vierheller took care of that when he outfitted two of his favorite chimps, Roy and Pancho, with junior size 12 tennis shoes.

"I wanted the chimps to be able to go for walks outside this winter," he said. "Last winter they got pretty restless staying cooped up."

Other articles in the chimps' winter wardrobes include blue jeans, sweatshirts and ski caps.

Roy and Pancho took to their new shoes so enthusiastically that Vierheller said he'd have to make another visit to the shoe store.

"The other chimps are sulking because they're barefooted," he said.
