M'Murray And Miss Carroll Due At The State Thursday

"One Night In Lisbon" Will Be On Double Bill With "Scattergood Pulls The Strings," Starring Guy Kibbee

Two of Hollywood's finest stars, Fred MacMurray and Madaleine Carroll, have the leading roles in "One Night in Lisbon," which opens Thursday at the State for a three-day run. Also on the bill will be "Scattergood Pulls the Strings," with Guy Kibbee. "The Nurse's Secret," and "The Bride Came C. O. D.," will show thru Wednesday.

Chock-full of suspects, loaded with thrills, "Poison Pen," is due Thursday at the Lyric with Flora Robson and Robert Newton in the leading roles. "Wyoming Trail," and "Captain Marvel," also will show. "Under Age" and "They Dare Not Love," two fine productions, show thru Wednesday.

Wednesday and Thursday will be the final days for the showing of "When Ladies Meet," at the Ohio. It features lovely Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Herbert Marshall and Greer Garson. On the Ohio stage on Friday will be Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club Revue.

Currently showing at the Sigma are "Whistling in the Dark," and "Lady Scarface," two thrill features. In the first hit Red Skelton and Conrad Veidt have the principal roles which Judith Anderson portrays "Lady Scarface."

The Quilna's unusual picture, "Man Hunt," has been highly praised by Lima audiences. It stars Walter Pidgeon, Joan Bennett and George Sanders. "We Go Fast," which completes the program, features Lynn Bari and Alan Curtis.

"The Penalty" and "Melody Ranch," commence Thursday at the Majestic.

QUILNA

Most boys want to become firemen, soldiers, or locomotive engineers, but young John Carradine wanted to become Chief Justice of The Supreme Court.

That this lean, saturnine character, who is featured in "Man Hunt," now at the Quilna theatre, which stars Joan Bennett and Walter Pidgeon, became an actor was not unexpected.

John Carradine was born in Greenwich Village, then the artiest of art centers, that section of New York City where more writers, artists and actors were to be found per square block than any other place in the United States.

First as a sketch artist and designer for theatrical companies, and then as an actor, John plunged into a stage career.

Breaking into the movies was tougher than Carradine had anticipated, but persistance, plus an intelligent understanding and thorogoing knowledge of Shakespeare provided him with the key to Hollywood's formidable portals.

It was while sonorously reciting the famous lines from "Hamlet," that the unconventionally garbed actor caught the ear of Cecil B. De Mille.

Carradine was cast as the "voice offstage" that thrilled the audiences in the epic, "Sign of the Cross." But this was merely the beginning. 20th Century-Fox cast him as the sergeant in "The Prisoner of Shark Island," and from then on Carradine was made. His unforgettable performance as Casey in "The Grapes of Wrath," established him as one of America's finest actors.

Carradine is featured in "Man Hunt" with George Sanders and young newcomer Roddy McDowall. Fritz Lang directed from the screen play by Dudley Nichols, which was based on the novel "Rogue Male" by Geoffrey Household.

LYRIC

Mystery, suspense, intrigue, and murder all play an important role in the new release, "Poison Pen," due at the Lyric theatre Thursday.

The story, based on actual happenings in a small English town a few years ago, was written by Richard Llewellyn, famous author of "How Green Was My Valley." Flora Robson, Robert Newton, and Ann Todd are cast in the leading roles.

Betty, the beautiful blonde stenographer accompanying the danger-ridden Malcolm scientific expedition, was saved from a horrible death by the ubiquitous Captain Marvel in last week's episode of the Republic super-thriller, "Adventures of Captain Marvel," which shows every Thursday at the Lyric theatre.

Recovering consciousness, Betty is able to tell the superman facts which put him on the trail of the Scorpion, a sinister force of evil who covets the power of world dominion.

Serial fans who see the current episode, will learn the unique way in which Captain Marvel thwarts the Scorpion's evil machinations, including a spectacular escape from a horrible death by molten lava.

Tom Tayler, Frank Coghlan, Jr., Louise Currie, Robert Strange, George Pembroke and Harry Worth are featured in the production.

OHIO

Many successful personalities in all walks of life worked their way thru college. In the annuals of the theatrical profession, few have had to employ such means in order to complete their educations. Cab Calloway who comes to the Ohio theatre on Monday is one of the few.

Most students earning their way thru school wait on tables, mow lawns, serve as cashiers and a variety of other professions but Calloway, while attending law classes at Crane college in Chicago, was a night club star on the South Side of the Windy City.

Appreciating the fact that the working man's leisure is dictated by his hours of employment, Calloway has arranged to do four shows here so that men working "second trick" may attend. The first stage show will be at 1:45 p. m.

Cab was the master of ceremonies and singer in the revue at the Sunset Cafe, a Volstead era hot spot. The first show was at 7 p. m. while the last show was completed about 5 a. m. Between shows Calloway sat in his cubicle and prepared his lessons for the next day. As soon as his job was completed for the night Calloway rushed to his hotel and caught 40 proverbial winks because his first class was at 10 a. m.

Four big stars are brought together by its picturization of the Rachel Crothers' stage success, "When Ladies Meet," which is at the Ohio theatre. Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall head this brilliant cast in a gay story of four sophisticated people mixed up in love.

SIGMA

Hilarious Red Skelton spreads mirth by the wholesale in "Whistling in the Dark," comical adaptation of the Broadway stage hit now showing at the Sigma theatre, with Skelton playing his first starring role as a radio "crime creator" forced by criminals to invent a practical "perfect murder" for them. His antics and adventures in escaping with two girl friends maintain a continuous gale of laughter.

The comedian has for a sweetheart pretty Ann Rutherford, while Virginia Grey plays her love rival. The girls stage a battle over Red that is one of the top spots in the general hilarity.

Conrad Veidt, mystery man of "A Woman's Face," plays the sinister cultist leader who stirs up all the comical commotion. "Rags" Ragland, comedy hit of Broadway's "Panama Hattie," adds to the hilarity.

S. Sylvan, Simon directed, with principals including Henry O'Neill, Eve Arden, Paul Stanton and others. Effective camera work by Sidney Wagner and an interesting musical score by Bronislaw Kaper enhance the roaring comedy.

Thrills, chills and suspense are said to mark "Lady Scarface," at the Sigma, exciting RKO Radio melodrama featuring Dennis O'Keefe, Judith Anderson, Frances Neal, Mildred Coles and Eric Blore.

The gripping story deals with the activities of a feminine gunwoman in trying to recover $10,000 in loot planted at a big New York hotel, and the efforts of a young Chicago police officer to trap her.

DUE FRIDAY

Here is Cab Calloway who will bring his "Cotton Club Revue" to the Ohio theatre stage Friday.

Kidnaping Case Challenges Wits Of District Attorney

Thrill Program Scheduled At 9:30 P. M. Wednesday Via WEAF; Eddie Cantor Will Have Two Guests On Program

The abduction of a wealthy society girl provides an unusual case to try the ingenuity of "Mr. District Attorney" in Finis Farr's original mystery, "The Case of the Lame Canary," to be heard Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. over WEAF.

The D. A. (played by Jay Jostyn) and his assistants, portrayed by Vicki Vola and Len Doyle, move in to social circes to unravel this week's super-whodunit, whose key clue is the cause of the canary's lameness.

Eddie Cantor will have two guest stars in one when Burgess Meredith comes on the "Time to Smile" program Wednesday over WEAF at 9 p. m., playing "Tom" and "Dick" in a sketch satirizing his latest movie success entitled "Tom, Dick and Harry von Zell."

"Banjo-eyes" Cantor will attempt the role of the girl who couldn't make up her mind, played on the screen by Ginger Rogers. Harry van Zell is expected to feel at home in the part of Harry von Zell, while Bert "The Mad Russian" Gordon will play the face on the cutting room floor.

Dinah Shore will be featured in popular songs and as a comedienne in the Cantor sketches. Music will be by the orchestra and chorus directed by Edgar "Cookie" Fairchild who is currently being broken in as a deadpan voice comic by his banjo-eyed boss.

Wednesday will be moving day for the cast of Penthouse Party, which switches from WABC to WJZ to be heard weekly thereafter at 9:30 p. m.

Ilka Chase will be back as hostess, with a new band led by Vaughn Monroe, sensational new swingster whose orchestra has reached top ranking in less than a year. Yvette remains as featured vocalist with Bert Parks continuing as announcer. Following the policy established more than a year ago, Miss Chase will feature guests each week.

Guests for the inaugural NBC-Blue program Oct. 8 will be Adrian Lamous Hollywood dress designer and couturier to the stars, and Lou Holtz, popular comedian whose stories of 'Mr. Lapides' are a byword from coast to coast.

BLAZE LEVELS FARMER'S BARN

CELINA, Oct. 8—Fire caused by lightning destroyed the barn and contents on the Oran Crouch farm, eight miles southwest of Celina, during an electrical storm, Monday evening.

Crouch, who was milking in the barn at the time the lightning struck, was knocked over, but was able to leave the burning building unharmed.

The loss, covered by insurance, is estimated at $1400, and included the barn, 20 tons of hay, farm machinery and corn. The Celina fire department prevented the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings.
