The Girls on Parade

The 64-piece, all-girl drum and bugle corps of Spam post No. 570, American Legion, is headquartering in Madison this week while the group visits south Wisconsin cities. The post is at Austin, Minn.

Parades and concerts are on the schedule, as are a couple of nationwide broadcasts. The first of the radio shows will be aired Saturday from the Ft. Atkinson Municipal auditorium over the Mutual network; the second probably will come from Stoughton on July 10.

The girls arrived in Madison on Sunday and went to Janesville for a parade Monday. Today they were to visit Delavan, Elkhorn, and Whitewater.

Whether they'll put on a show in Madison is still problematical. Besides being a parade unit, the troupe becomes—for broadcasts and concerts—a 44-voice chorus and 20-piece orchestra.

All the members are veterans of World War II. Some were WAVES, some WACs, some Spars, some Marines.

The summer season will be climaxed by an appearance at the national American Legion convention. The group was organized only last year, but ranked 13th among more than 50 drum and bugle corps at the 1947 American Legion meeting.

Lillian "Birdie" Randolph is the first member of the cast of "The Great Gildersleeve" to sign for regular television work. She will be starred with the Jubileers in an all-Negro show to be run in on a Los Angeles video station before being filmed for national release.

Cy Howard's new situation show, "Little Immigrant," created a big splash in Hollywood radio circles at its audition performance late last week and Radio Row predicts it not only will be sold to a sponsor but will hit the top 15 in its first season.
